

Applications are invited for the post of:

Editor-in-Chief

The Society of NeuroInterventional Surgery (SNIS) is soliciting applications for the position of Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of NeuroInterventional Surgery (JNIS). JNIS was founded in 2009 and has become one of the premier neuroscience journals with a current impact factor of 4.5. The journal is owned by SNIS and published by BMJ.

Applicants with primary training backgrounds in interventional neuroradiology, endovascular neurosurgery or interventional neurology who are senior members of SNIS and have a recognized expertise in the field of neurointerventional surgery are welcome. Successful applicants should have a vision for advancing the scientific and international reputation of JNIS while maintaining the relevance of the journal to practicing neuro-interventionalists worldwide.

Full editorial support and training will be provided. The editor-in-chief should expect to spend the equivalent of up to one day in total each week on journal-related activities. The successful applicant will be free to select his/her own team of Associate Editors and Editorial Board members.

Closing date for applications is April 18, 2025. Interviews will be held in Spring 2025. We envision that the successful candidate will officially take up post in August 2025, following a hand-over period with the current Editor-in-Chief. The potentially renewable term of office is 5 years.

Further details of the post can be discussed with Marie Williams Denslow, CAE, Executive Director of SNIS.

Tel: (703) 691-2272; email williams@snisonline.org or the journal's Publisher, George Neame.

Tel: +44 (0)20 3655 5011; email gneame@bmj.com. A job description is also available on request.

To apply, please send your CV and a short analysis of the journal, what you perceive to be its strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats, and also your editorial strategy for the journal to Marie Williams Denslow at williams@snisonline.org.